CLASSICAL CHRONICLE

ITS' STUDENTS MAY PROUDLY STATE, THIS WAS CLASSICAL HIGH

August 5, 1845—the birth of a high school. Yes, fellow classmates, it was on this memorable date that a new landmark was added to our city, when Worcester High School, the first co-ed high school in Worcester, opened on Walnut St. The school, which became the pride of the city, quickly began to establish its' notoriety, when, in 1848, the first school paper, "Excelsior," appeared, written in long-hand. If you had been a pupil at Worcester High School back in the 1850's, your schedule would have been comprised of ancient geography, political economy, astronomy, geology, Greek, natural theology, and natural, intellectual, and moral philosophy. Our courses look pretty easy now! Each student was required to pass a written examination in every subject at the end of each term, and school ran twice each day, for six days a week. There were four terms, one of which was during the summer. 185 days, Bah!

1858 saw the founding of the Eucleia Debating Society for boys, and a year later, the first printed school newspaper, "Thesaurus" began its' circulation. An Alumni Association and presentation of graduation diplomas commenced in 1860 and 1861 respectively. Realizing the "strain" placed upon the students due to the two daily sessions, the year 1864 brought one daily session 9:00 to 2:00. During the 1870's, the course of study was divided into three groups, College, Classical, and English; a new building was dedicated on Walnut St.; marking techniques shifted from numerals to letters; and in 1879, Saturday classes were abolished. In 1881, the Aletheia Literary Society, oldest school organization still functioning, was formed, while four years later, high school athletics began with the holding of the first Field Day. Before the end of the century, Worcester High School divided into Classical and English school; English High moved into a new building on Irving St. But Classical's day was not far off. After a Girls Basketball team was organized in 1904, and the first bound Yearbook, "Aftermath", was published in 1910, Classical High School, in 1914, finally found its' true home upon transferring to the corner of Irving and Chatham streets. Among the early customs inaugurated at the school were the botany and geology field trips, June picnics to Framingham, and Christmas Parties where games such as "Blind Man's Buff" were engaged in by the students.

The year following Classical's transfer to Irving St., the Green Room Club Dramatic Society was begun, and before the publishing of our present school newspaper, "Argus," in 1920, the first orchestra was organized, and the first Student Council was elected. From 1922, when the annual Parents' Night was first held, up to 1937, Classical grew both intellectually and socially. In 1938, disaster struck the hallowed halls in the form of a hurricane which destroyed the north and south wings of Classical. As a result, afternoon classes were held at North High School, but by 1940, Classicalites were able to return to their school. The war brought the initiation of Health classes, which were made compulsory for Seniors, and frequent air raid alarms. In 1944, the school day was increased by one hour, and in June of 1945, Commencement exercises were held at the Athletic Field.

Things began to return to normal after the war, and fashions at Classical changed from "sloppy" sweaters and full skirts to seek-fitting sweaters and narrow, wrap-around skirts. The rage of 1947 in the fashion world was the Eisenhower jacket. Our faculty at Classical was greatly improved that year due to the addition of Miss Gilbert and Mr. Butler, while two others teachers, Mr. Cravedi and Mr. Weed, slid across the ice at the Cocoonut Grove to become the most popular skaters of the year.

1949 became the year of "Mule Train," the popular song whistled by all students on their way to gym, and also the year that found most of Classical searching for the errant elevators. The year 1950, referred to as the day of argyles and Mario Lanza, was highlighted by trips to Sturbridge, Mass., the Worcester Biological Center, and the Purification Works. Phrases such as "Do you think it's flattering?" and "Who is it?" abounded the halls during 1953, and it was also in that year that Classical Latin scholars put a book entitled "The Trot," on the best-seller list at local book stores.

In athletics during the early 50's, one name towered above all the rest, Sid Goldfader, a three-sport captain who is considered perhaps the greatest athlete Classical has ever produced. Due to his proficiency in baseball, football, and basketball, he lead the Tigers to a season rivalling the fantastic year of 1945-46 when Classical won all the city championships in those sports. Closing out the fervent fifties, a Junior picnic at Whalom Park was the biggest event of 1955, while 1956 brought to Classical's halls sighs for Elvis, desires for Buster Brown collars, and screams of the famous and intriguing war cry "Salatoobee" which was invented that year. In 1958, a new addition to Classical, in the form of a redeveloped library, appeared, and the Radio Club, reorganized in 1956 by Mr. Weed, received its' amateur radio station call letters of KIEHH.

With the coming of the swinging sixties, new faces and revolutionary ideas in teaching also arrived. Added to our ever increasing faculty in 1960, were two bright, new English teachers, Mr. Wells and Mr. Donohue, who soon had all the students exclaiming "Great Grammar"! One of our biology instructors, Mr. Weed, who has been quite a celebrity at Classical, also became a television celebrity due to his appearances on Boomtown.

Our high school has meant so many things to so many people, that it would require volumes to adequately cover the lustre that was Classical's. Though the great torch that was Classical is quickly reaching its' last flicker of glory, the flame that has been instilled in the hearts of its' students can never go out, for Classical exemplifies American High School Number 1, U.S.A.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

C. Stephen Driscoll

Members of the Class of 1966, parents, teachers, and friends: as President of this class, it is my honor and privilege to extend a most cordial welcome to the Class Day Exercises of the Class of 1966.

It has been three years since we first entered Classical. During these three years, we have developed friendships and more important values which hopefully, will guide us through the years ahead.

Because of the high standards of scholarship and respect which have always been a part of Classical's tradition, we have a special responsibility. Being the last class to graduate from Classical High School, we will uphold and maintain its proud heritage. We will face the future strengthened by the training and guidance we have received within these walls. We shall always remember, with gratitude and appreciation, the institution which has educated us and provided us with many fond memories.

Classical will be remembered also for having imparted to us a special kind of co-operative spirit, a mutual warmth and friendliness which has enabled us to develop wholesome social relationships among ourselves and with our teachers. We have also learned the value of true friendship, bonded by the ties of willingness and loyalty.

Once again, I welcome you to the last meeting of the Class of 1966.

CLASS ORATION

It is indeed unfortunate that we are unable to answer in the affirmative the question of T. S. Eliot, "Do I dare disturb the universe?" The game is apathy, and everyone must cheat.

It makes no difference whether or not we go to college. Responsibility to society is the pride of every man, and it cannot be found in test tubes, text books, or term papers. This is the only way in which we can eternalize the name of Classical High. Even as we return next year, Classical will be no more. In a sense, we are now laying to rest an old but mighty warrior. It shall be through a keen awareness of the problems of our society and through a sincere desire to speak out when the situation dictates that we can even hope to pay back the fallen warrior.

When a woman is beaten on a busy downtown corner, will you at least spare a minute to call the police, or will you turn the other way and stay "uninvolved"? When the legislature is about to pass an unfair bill, will you have the courage to speak your convictions, or will you, in order not to "make waves," ignore the situation and just swallow your pride, and your dignity along with it?

"So night is grandeur to our dust,
So near is God to man,
When duty whispers low, THOU MUST,
The youth replies, I Can."

Was Emerson fooling himself? Our generation has been labeled a generation of cowards. It has been said that we live in a "twisted age," an age where "sin is in," and where morality is out.

Every newspaper and magazine in the country has painted the future of America a dark and horrible black. They say we've no principles, and that we stand for nothing except ovals for voiceless folk singers. A sheepish looking rebel who rides motorcycles and prophesies of "Positively 4th Street" has been called the poet of our generation. All this, and more, forms a shameful surface image of this generation.

The horror of it all is that it may be more than just the surface. We speak out against the draft and the evils of Alabama. But when it comes to supporting our honor in Vietnam as a thousand other important matters—then the game is apathy.

Barry Levenson

"Apathy: Challenge to a Generation"

The people of our country are playing a game. It is not a very intelligent game; it cannot be, for everyone is a loser. The rules are that there are no rules. It is not a game of cards; it is not a game of chance. Little children do not play, only big ones. The game is apathy.

The thirty-nine people who looked on as a young woman was savagely attacked and beaten were only playing a game. They are, as their friends will tell you, "good people." They just didn't want to get involved.

A year from now . . . how many of us will have burned a draft card because we believe that conscription is wrong? How many of us will have marched in a picket line for a sincere cause? How many of us will have spoken out against even one of the many social injustices that plague this country? How many of us will have even given a thought to them? How many of us, and I fear it shall be too many, will have said, "Let someone else worry about it?"

The game is apathy. Any number can play. It's not a word game; you don't have to say one single word. In fact, that's the general idea. All you need are some false pride, ignorance, and cowardice. Social injustices . . . because the eyes of society are always closed. The rich steal from the poor and we pretend not to notice it. The public watches murder in cold blood and only yawns. The game is apathy.

CLASS HISTORY

Judith Masnik

To each student who is about to be graduated, the words "Classical High School" mean something different. To some, they mean a long walk from the cafeteria to the fourth floor and then back down to the basement. To others, they mean another in a long line of afternoon sessions, given for some reason completely inexplicable to the student but perfectly obvious to the teacher. But whatever the picture, it is made up of a series of impressions starting at the time when we, believe it or not, were actually sophomores.

As sophomores, Classical presented a rather forbidding impression to us. Used to relatively modern buildings, we could not appreciate the charm of a desk top carved with the words "Tom and Jane, 1921" or beautifully mutilated shades which were not meant to keep out the sun, but were merely supposed to serve as ornaments. The highlight of our sophomore year was gym class. What could be more fun than marching downtown in six feet of snow to get to the "Y," only to arrive just in time to return to school. Of course, these jaunts, joyously free from supervision, gave us a chance to get to know our new classmates and to stop in at the friendly, but forbidden, neighborhood candy store for something to eat. As sophomores we were not made to feel very welcome at our new school. Many of us, without even having spent a day at Classical, were callously sent to Worcester's answer to Siberia—the Commerce section. Others of us had the privilege of remaining here until February 1, before being deported. What use was our new-found knowledge of school geography in that alien land? Our stay at "Commical" did nothing for our school spirit. It was very difficult to cheer for Classical while at a Commerce rally. It was not exactly that we thought the Commerce students resented our presence; it was merely a case of feeling that it would be in better taste not to offend our hosts.

As our sophomore year progressed, we were able to attend many school functions which, when we were in junior high, had been merely phrases nonchalantly spouted by sophisticated older brothers and sisters. The Variety Show gave us our first example of the immense amount of talent available at Classical. Later in the year, the senior play, Our Hearts Were Young and Gay, again proved the diversity of Classical's student body. Karen Sarkala, a member of our class, brought us all into the limelight by her excellent job as the play's lead, Cornelia Otis Skinner.

Finally June arrived, and with the graduation of the class of '64, we moved one more step up the ladder to the exalted position of juniors. As we happily left school for summer vacation, few of us paused to think that our stay at Classical was one-third over.

Fully feeling the momentousness of the occasion, we began our junior year by solemnly electing class officers. We weren't quite sure what their official function was, but this didn't stop us from actively campaigning for our personal choices. Thus our campaign, which saw Kevin Harvey, Janet Dupont, Ann Jankowski, and Stephen Driscoll emerge victorious, was far more exciting than the Johnson—Goldwater race of the same year.

Our junior year also brought us into contact for the first time with that noble business firm operating out of Princeton, New Jersey, known as the Educational Testing Service. We may have loved old Classical all during the week, but somehow things didn't look quite so inviting on dreary Saturday mornings interspersed at random throughout the year. After spending three hours blackening in boxes, most of us felt that they should pay us, and not we them. Later in the winter came still another frolic, National Merits, making us wonder whether it might not have been better to remain in grammar school.

The year brought some consolation, however. Gym was a thing of the past, as was "Comical." We again got the chance to view the Variety Show, this time marvelling at the amazing muscle control of "Little Egypt." The senior play, Twelve Angry Men, again got rave notices. Patty Cooper, Judy Sullivan, Carolyn Slesinski, Karen Sarkala, Mark Fins, and Richard Gazoorian were but a few of our classmates involved in its production. Spring also brought the Junior Prom with Kathy Barnes reigning as queen.

As the seniors got ready to depart, we prepared to move into their positions. Barry Levenson and Steven Flax were named co-editors of the "Argus," and Sandy Slack and Claire Kaskan became the new co-captains of the cheerleaders. Robert Berliner was awarded the Harvard Book Prize, and Jean Bohmann the Aletheia Literary Award. Our junior year was over, and with it, another third of our stay at Classical. The best, we hoped, was yet to come.

When we returned to school in the fall, we knew that this year would be different. Not only were we seniors, but probably the last seniors to be graduated from Classical. That new school may have all the modern conveniences, but what it makes up in efficiency it lacks in charm. Imagine a school with real intercoms, so you can't see your friends as they come around to deliver notices. Because of the attachment we have for Classical, most of us were glad to know that we wouldn't have to go to the new school.

Senior year brought many changes to Classical and many new experiences for us. Mr. Couming retired, to be replaced by our new principal, Mr. O'Connor. Mr. Breen went to Doherty, and Mr. Cravedi took his place. Individually, we were faced with the decision of what to do after graduation. For most, this meant college applications, interviews, and more college boards. The year became one of waiting—waiting for board scores, waiting to hear from college, waiting for graduation. Somehow we couldn't help feeling sorry for the juniors who had this to look forward to.

On the lighter side, 1966 brought into the limelight a most unusual couple, Batman and Robin. A fan club was started, complete with president and faculty advisor. Of course, there were those who maintained that Batman could not compare with Superman, who didn't need a batmobile to get around and couldn't be hurt even by the Riddler or the Joker. Our senior year also brought renewed pride in our basketball team. It was great going to a game confident that we were going to win, even if sometimes it was only by two points in overtime.

This year, too, we chose class officers. Stephen Driscoll became our new president, Dottie Mitchell our vice-president, and Holly Greene our secretary. It was Jimmy Thurston who had to chase us around the school for our class dues. Class day officers were also chosen—Barry Levenson, orator, Andy Brem, testator, and John Pigaga and Sheila Gordon, marshalls. Graduation speakers were also announced. They were Steven Flax, Ellen Codish, Mary-Lou Breitborde, and Judy Masnik. Awards from the National Merits were presented. David Arthur, Robert Berliner, Mary-Lou Breitborde, Ellen Codish, Holly Greene, Richard Jaffee, and Ruth Mencow received Letters of Commendation, and Steven Flax and Judy Masnik were semi-finalists.

Perhaps what really made us finally comprehend that we were actually leaving were our graduation rehearsals. This time we were the ones who didn't know the words to the Alma Mater, and we were the ones who had so much trouble getting lined up. Our comfortable and nonchalant attitude contrasted sharply with our feelings the first time we had met together as a class, listening to an address welcoming us to three years at Classical. These feelings, and all the thoughts and experiences which went with them, will remain in our memories long after our high school days have ended.

CLASS WILL

Andrew Brem

THE LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

CLASS OF 1966

When in the course of human events, individuals find it necessary to dissolve those bonds which have, for three short years, united those individuals to one another, it is both fitting and proper that they assess their wealth and dispose of it accordingly. Thus, We, the Class of 1966, the last graduating class of Classical High School in the city of Worcester, Commonwealth of Massachusetts, being of sound body and of questionable mind, due to the uncertainty of our position, do hereby make this our LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT.

To Mr. O'Connor, Mr. Cravedi, Mr. Couming, Mr. Breen, and all the faculty of Classical High School, we offer our deepest gratitude for a job well done.

Of our lesser wealth and possessions, we bequeath the following:

To the mayor's son, we leave a cement block from Harrington Conner and a copy of "Mooden" Drama.

To Mr. McHugh, we leave a Gilbert Home Chem Lab.

To Miss D'Errico, we leave a subscription to the Window Shade of the Month Club.

To Miss Barsam, we leave a citation, signed by the Society of Feline Friends, for bravery above and beyond the call of . . . something.

To Mr. Langille, we leave the Mixed Chorus . . . good luck!

To Mr. Brooks, we leave a copy of the latest school committee rules.

To Mr. Weed, we leave a video tape recording of Boom Town with cartoons.

To Mr. Charbonneau, Judy Masnik leaves a bull whip and a red cape for his dying bull.

To Mr. Bedard, we leave physics . . . that's enough for anyone.

To Mr. Butler, Ellen Codish leaves an Aeneid trot and a racing strip for his sporty new car with four on the floor and a top speed of 120 m.p.h.

To the editors of the Argus, Barry Levenson and our ace of spades, the highest of all mortals, the number one person in the senior class . . . (I'll give you a hint, it's not me), Steven Flax, we leave a year's subscription to a real publication, Mad Magazine.

Now Continuing with other individual and group accounts:

The Jug Band leaves its first album, "Thoughts from Walpole," released on Prison Records.

Batman leaves Classical's batboy a Louisville Slugger . . . hope the baseball team can use it.

We, the Senior Class, leave the Juniors . . . a new country club on Highland Street.

Steve Driscoll leaves potato farming and Bernie Cohen.

Bernie Cohen leaves the guidance office and Steve Driscoll . . . nice going Bernie!

"Robin, the Boy Wonder," Flax leaves Mr. Wells a string of paper dolls, a broken desk spindle, and two ballpoint pen springs to play with during lectures.

Karen Sarkala leaves the task of directing the variety show to some other poor "sole" or "soul" depending on the results of the show.

"Lance" Levine leaves his piercing voice to the Mixed Chorus.

Dave Rubin leaves performing on his trick knee.

Mark Moses and his guitar leave the Jug Band.

Kevin Harvey leaves running for another office.

Terry Epstein leaves-quiet for a change.

Henry Belch leaves for the Gas station.

Janet Dupont leaves her bright smile to someone with the Monday 8:15 blues.

Mike Hersh leaves his red shirt — if anyone dares to wear it.

"Little Egypt" doesn't leave much, but sure takes a lot with her!

Sheila Gordon and Audrey Plotkin leave camel love calls from "Lawrence of Arabia" done by an obscure Classicalite.

Janet Hunter and Judy Levy leave behind room five studies fourth period.

Linda Leyden and Francine Lampros leave the honor they shared jointly, "Marshmallow of the Month."

Harvey Bloomfield and George Drapos are leaving . . .?!?!

Vivian McCabe leaves . . . riding her scooter side saddle.

Jeff Barr leaves dribbling . . . better get him a Kleenex.

Pete Checkoway leaves 57 varieties or 28 flavors of pickles.

Sally Knight, Patty Cooper, and Judy Sullivan leave each other.

Kenny Wolf leaves his sheep's clothing.

Now, We, the Senior Class, who have spent 35,963 delightful periods in these hallowed but not hollow chambers of higher learning, leave dear old Classical with a lump in our throats from affection for our soon to be defunct alma mater and a bump on our heads from the falling plaster.

Here to this last will and testament of the Class of 1966, I do set my hand and seal on this day of June nineteen hundred and sixty-six and of the graduating classes of Classical High School, the one hundred and twenty-first and last.

CHANDLER STREET JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL AUDITORIUM

Before you accept that first job . . .

Look over your employer
as carefully as he does you

What's the Company like anyway? Would I be proud to work there? Reputation for square dealing with employees? Pleasant surroundings?

Will I be working with others my own age? Are they friendly? Do they socialize after hours?

Will the boss be reasonable? Appreciate good, hard work, but won't explode if I make a mistake?

Will I make a decent week's pay? Have a chance for raises, advancement, more responsibility? How about fringe benefits?

Is the work challenging? I had what it takes to get through high school. Will they give me a chance to use my brains?

Note: Many young men and women in this area can answer "Yes" to these questions. They work for New England Telephone Company . . . New England's largest employer.

Why not talk with our employment interviewer soon . . . before you graduate? Ask your Guidance Counselor to tell you when and where to apply.
